none unfortunately, I have been asking for a block of time to get this going for some time now, but other projects and accounts kept taking priority. Brent says he has a response from the client that by end of month will be acceptable, and I have reminded him that I will need a number of days set aside to get this done when I get back.

We've read the e-mails from Sandy on the dispositions and it seems they are getting quite upset about this. When you say 37 dispos, what does that mean.

Well, today was not as productive as I would have liked, we have to be more organized tomorrow for sure.
